CHALLENGE: Cycle of mismanagement and corrupt leadership in City Hall

VISION: Transparent, accountable leadership

OUR APPROACH: Undertake financial audit of every city agency

Sadly, Baltimore has faced mismanagement and corrupt leadership within City Hall for decades. Baltimore City residents deserve accountable, efficient and transparent leadership that works at every level.

It's time to hold elected officials accountable and root out the systemic corruption that has run rampant in the city for too long. I will create a new position focused on ethics and transparency—the city manager/chief ethics officer, who will work hand in hand with me to create more accountability and transparency at all levels of city government. Together, we will oversee the ethics of the city's employees, budgets and elected officials.

In my first 100 days in office, we will undertake a complete forensic financial audit of every city agency to see how and where budgets are being spent and how well they are being managed. We will root out mismanagement to ensure that each agency is doing its best to carry out its duty to serve the needs of the citizens of Baltimore City.
